“ . . .one of the finest musicians I have ever heard. . . and you can tell this because to hear and see him is to know that he really loves what his gift is and loves even more in the sharing of it. ”

— Laurin Wollan, MUSIC MONTHLY

Guitarist/Composer/Educator Rob Levit is a multi-directional artist whose work has been distinguished by the depth of its originality and the breadth of its interest. Whether in a mainstream jazz, chamber music, experimental electronic or rock music context, Levit's signature performance style is defined by a singing guitar tone, dynamically engaging the audience and a fearless group approach to improvised music.

A five-time consecutive recipient of the Maryland State Arts Council Individual Artist Award and the first recipient of the Doris Duke/Chamber Music America Jazz Composition Award (along with Andrew Hill, Jane Ira Bloom, Marcus Roberts and several others), Levit's compositional approach, Symbol System, establishes the primacy of melody while creating sometimes quirky and demanding rhythms within complex original forms. His ensembles are “tight-knit and democratic units” where there is plenty of room for individual exploration within an evolving group dynamic. He has composed over fifty original works, including the Julius Hemphill/Jazz Composers' Alliance first prize winner RUBICON. His compositions have appeared on twelve commercially available compact discs.

As an educator (M.M. New England Conservatory, B.A. University of Virginia), Levit has been an Artist-In-Residence or given workshops/concerts at the University of Virginia, Collegiate School (Richmond VA), Youth Empowerment Station (Richmond VA), Waldorf School (Baltimore MD) and the Community Colleges of Baltimore County. In addition, he established a jazz guitar studio at Loyola College and is a private instructor.

“ He uses the entire neck of the guitar in order to produce as many fluctuating sounds as possible. Immediately, it is obvious that Rob is not just a guitar player, but a cultured musician. . . ”

— Nick Alexopolus, LOYOLA GREYHOUND

Complementing his musical activities, Levit is engaged in the pursuit and study of human creativity and potential. He is an active and published essayist/poet and visual artist.

Rob Levit is inspired by improvising artists like Sam Rivers, Pat Metheny, Ornette Coleman and Charles Mingus who established their own compositional and improvisational identities while maintaining an abiding belief in the validity of all forms of musical and artistic expression. Studying and integrating the concepts of Rumi, Wallace Stevens, Bela Bartok, Paul Klee and architect Steven Holl has given Levit a musical and artistic approach that transcends the ordinary and creates a sound and creative world that is all his own.

“ . . .one of the finest young guitarists on today's jazz scene. ”
